

How much havoc is available to the mischievous ski kid?

Or how to become a petty criminal?

Digging here or parking here could be a minor start, but where are we?

This is Sun Valley, and you have options.

But let's move forward to about here

It looks like this right now, and while there are some obvious signs to not smoke, and some oil left out plus a construction zone; you have options.

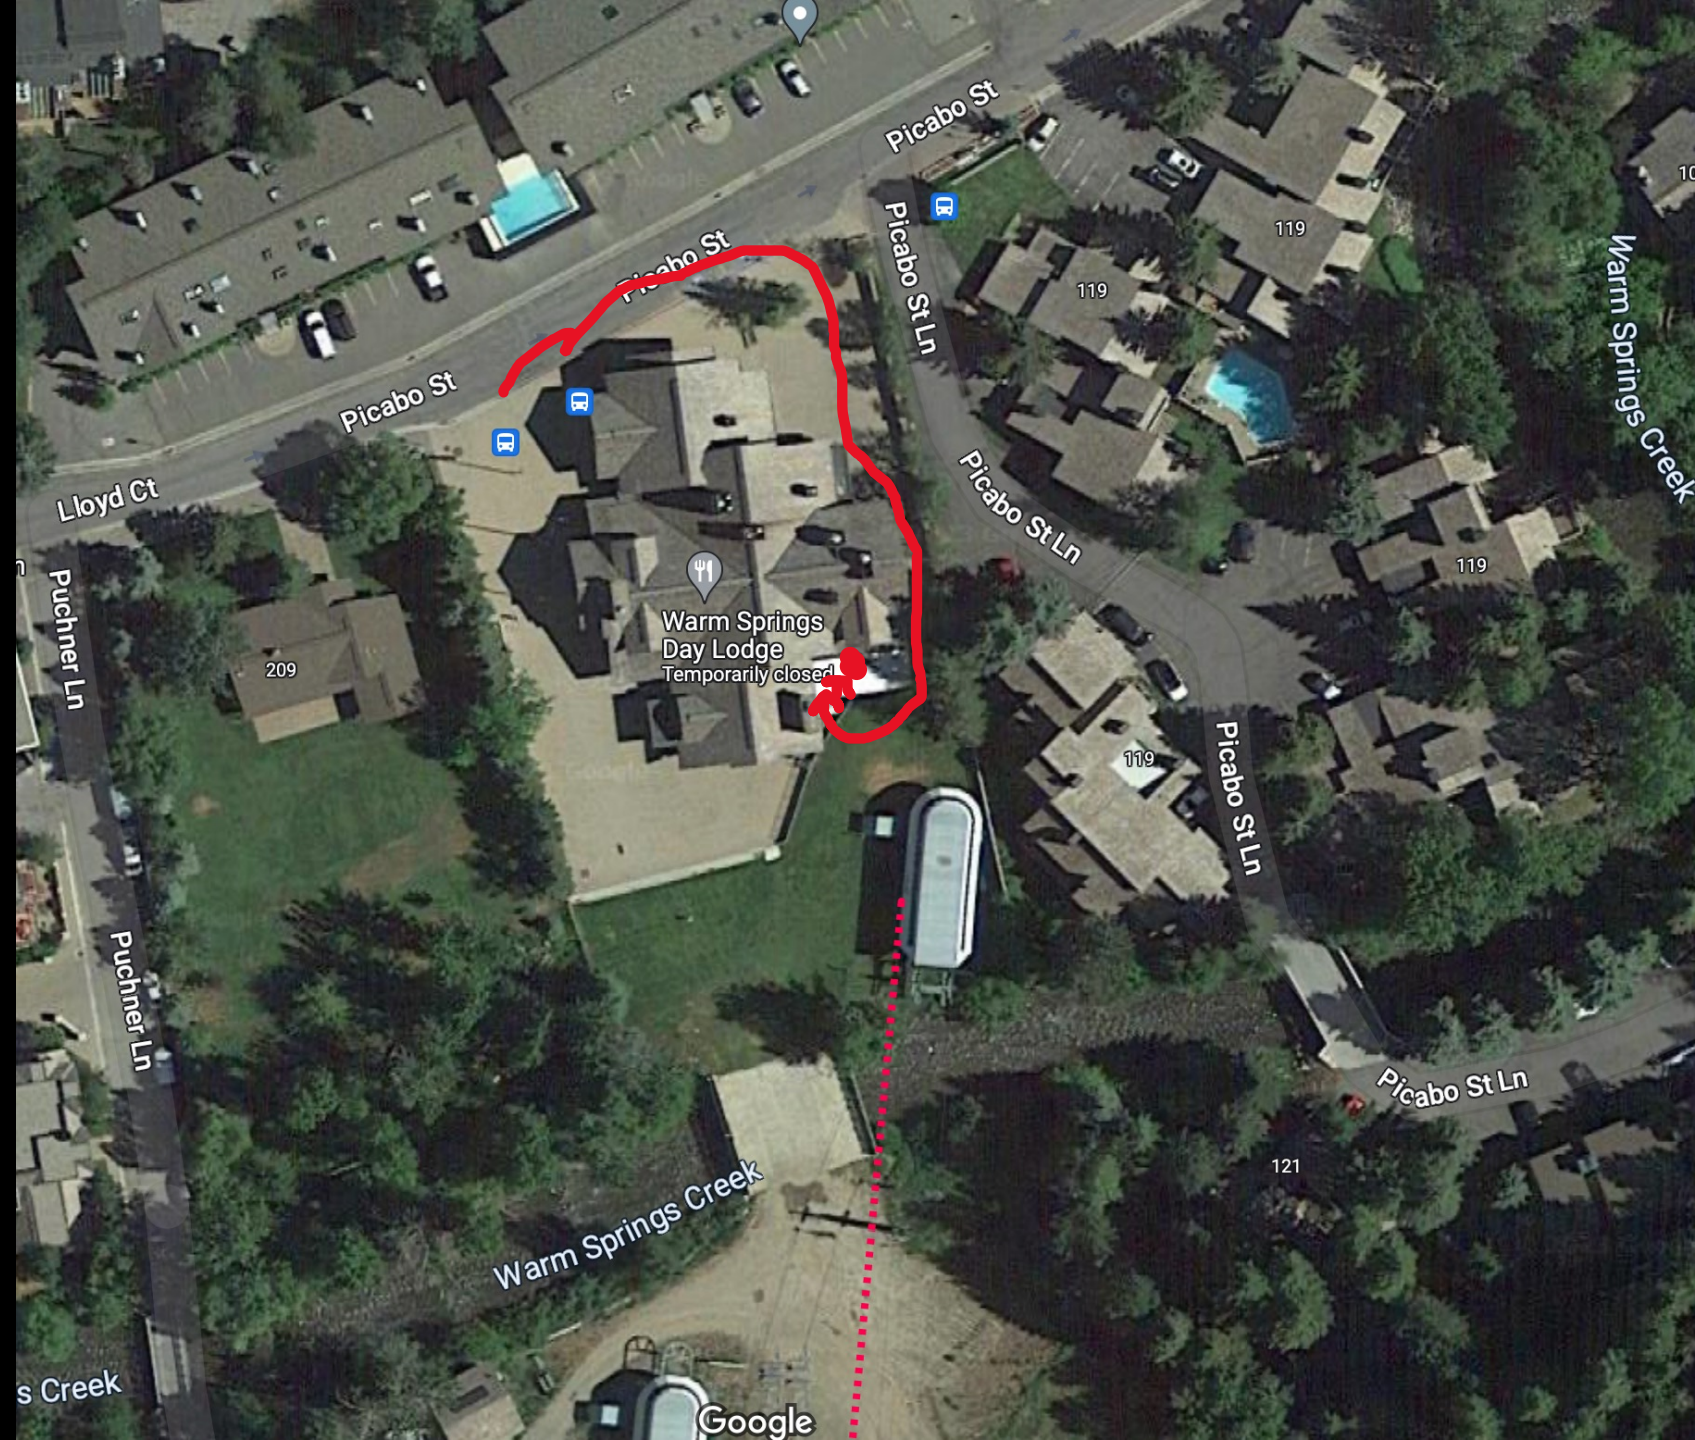

This is a minor one to get through.

You know what, how would you break into this place now that we have found place and some distractions?

But you are going to have to unplug a live cam and know a spot right here on the map.

Unplug it from the second story.

Grab that trash can on the route and take it to the red point.

Then use it and the bars to get on the slanted roof.

There is live cam on the window to the left you must unplug. Look at it on the SV website to orient yourself.

You want it to go from this

To this

Now wait till security checks on it

They won't fix it as they won't plug it back in from the exterior. Once they leave, remember a box seen on the climb down from the roof. This one is shown on the right. Click this one off and open the window to the right. There is no latch so push hard when back on the roof.

Now that you are in.

Enjoy the view, and know that the only thing that will set off the alarm is if try to go out a door. But remember, you committed one felony getting in; if you take some booze or cash over one hundred dollars, that is another felony and if you flee from the cops and get caught, welp...

Hot Tips

- They never look in the upstairs bit, and if you want to show your friends your success, plug the Live cam back in and have them sign on so you can show them your success. Enjoy the junk food you stole, kid.
